The Baja Peninsula of Mexico is the longest peninsula in the world. Longer than Italy.

It is a collection of mountains, desert, cactus and wide beaches that stretches 747 miles from top to bottom. To the east is the Sea of Cortez. To the west, the Pacific Ocean. And to the south there is not another piece of land until Antarctica comes into sight.

The first European travelers to reach the Baja were adventurers – Hernan Cortes and Francisco de Ulloa. They were in search of the fabled Seven Cities of Gold. They never found them.

But gold finally was found on the Baja Peninsula – in particular in the Los Cabos region – in 1992. It came in the form of the Golden Bear, Jack Nicklaus.

That's when Palmilla, Nicklaus' first signature course in Latin America, was built in the then-sleepy tourist region. Before that time the region had only two distinctions.

In the capital town of San Jose del Cabo, there was the mission that was founded by the Jesuits in 1690. That town slowly grew and eventually opened the tiny airport that brought a small number of tourists to the region. Now it is a modern jetport that brings more than two million tourists to the region every year.

The other town was Cabo San Lucas. In the early 1900s it grew around a small fishing village and a tuna cannery. Later it became one of the sport fishing capitals of the world.

And then the Golden Bear started a new gold rush. Or, better termed, a golf rush. His first course, Palmilla, started a wave of golf construction and, soon, a new wave of upscale tourism development that has transformed the area into one of the most chic vacation destinations in the world.

In December of 2014, the 14th golf course in the region – and the sixth designed by Nicklaus – opened.

Quivira is part of a master planned community that includes the Pueblo Bonito Pacifica luxury hotel, the Novaispania interval ownership estate homes, the ocean-view Copola condominiums and the Coronado single family homes. And at the center of it all is one of the most scenic, exciting, wildest and dramatic seaside golf courses in the Western Hemisphere.

The setting is magnificent, as golfers play through three different environments – seaside, dunes and high-desert mountains. Quivira provides more oceanfront exposure than any other course in Los Cabos, with views of the Pacific from every hole.

“There are many golf courses in Los Cabos but Quivira is an experience,” explains Antonio Reynante, director of golf at this cross between a golf course and a roller coaster ride. “It can be strikingly beautiful one moment and then, when the wind rises, it can strike fear into the greatest golfers on earth.”

Situated on the southernmost point of the peninsula, wind is an ever-present factor. And, at its fiercest, it can topple a Sumo wrestler.

Fortunately, Nicklaus took into account the wind. He designed extremely generous fairways. Placing a tee shot in the short grass is a fair proposition on even the windiest days.

The challenge increases when it is time to zero in on the greens. Elevation comes into play when calibrating most approach shots.

Speaking of elevation ... there is more elevation change on Quivira – 275 feet of elevation change – than can be found on all but a handful of golf courses in the world.

That makes for some grueling uphill holes. One, for example, is No. 8. Although only 318 yards from the blue tees, it is extremely uphill and plays into the face of the prevailing wind. Those two forces can turn what looks like, on paper, an easy hole into a long brute.

In fact, on paper, the entire course doesn't appear to be long. It measures 7,139 yards from the championship tees; 6,701 from the gold; 6,216 from the blue; 5,598 from the white; and 4,326 from the red. But it plays longer

The Resort at Longboat Key Club Evolves From a Great Golf Resort, to an Even Greater One

Resort at Longboat Key Club – old Islandside Course Now The Links on Longboat

Resort at Longboat Key Club – The Harbourside Course

By Tony Leodora Traveling Golfer Presented by Yuengling Brewery

PHILADELPHIA, Pa. – (November 1, 2015) – For years American travelers have longed to get way to the islands. Of course some of the challenges involve passports, changing currency, foreign airports and different languages. The “in-the-know” travelers know better.

The Resort at Longboat Key Club, located on an exclusive barrier island just off Florida’s West Coast near Sarasota, has long been regarded one of America’s premier island destinations. It was recently named one of the top ten islands in the United State by Conde’ Nast magazine.

Featuring spectacular beaches, a four-star luxury hotel and 45 holes of championship golf, The Resort at Longboat Key Club will tantalize viewers who watch the latest episode of the award-winning Traveling Golfer television show, airing throughout the month of November.

While many visitors cannot stop talking about the beach, the pools, the luxurious rooms and the restaurants at The Resort at Longboat Key Club, it is the golf that has seen the greatest improvement recently. Originally designed by golf course architect Willard Byrd during the 1980s, the Harbourside and Islandside layouts have undergone major renovations by acclaimed designer Ron Garl. The result is spectacular golf in an unforgettable island setting.

“When I first heard about Longboat Key, I really didn’t get the entire picture,” said Mike Kern, a nationally recognized golf writer who appears on the Traveling Golfer television show. “I have been to plenty of places in Florida but this place is different. It’s like I left the country, but without all of the inconveniences. This might be the favorite resort I have ever been to.”

Traveling Golf host Tony Leodora is quick to agree about the Resort at Longboat Key Club.

“I first came to Longboat Key around 1980,” he explains. “Over the years I have returned to the property about every seven years or so. The amazing part is that it keeps getting better. The recent renovations to the golf courses, including re-grassing with the latest strain of salt-resistant platinum paspalum grasses, make this the must-stop on the central part of Florida’s West Coast.”

Terry O’Hara, the head professional for the 45 holes of golf at The Resort at Longboat Key Club, is quick to point out that the two golf courses provide great variety for members and hotel guests. He identifies the old Islandside Course, now renamed The Links on Longboat, as one of the best re-designs in the entire state. He calls it “a course that is now a lot more fun for golfers to play. The green complexes have been re-designed and we took out about half of the bunkers.”

He calls the Harbourside Course “the course that most of the members want to play” but goes on to say, “it is a shotmaker’s course that requires some thought.”

The episode from The Resort at Longboat Key Club begins airing November 1 and runs throughout the month on The Traveling Golfer Network of websites ... including The Golf Director Network (see full list of sites on www.travelinggolfervideo.com). It also will air on Monday, November 9 as part of the Press Box television show in Myrtle Beach, 5 to 7 p.m. on HTC Ch. 4. As of April, the Traveling Golfer began airing in its entirety as a scheduled weekly feature show on Comcast SportsNet and The Comcast Network throughout the Philadelphia, Mid-Atlantic, North Jersey and Pittsburgh markets.

Part of every Traveling Golfer show, there is the additional feature, “Tech Talk”, hosted by Tour Edge Golf President Dave Glod. With years of experience as a clubmaker, Glod presents an inside look at the research and development of high-quality golf equipment.

Responding to golfers’ never-ending demands to learn more about interesting golf courses and golf resorts across the country and around the world, well-traveled host Tony Leodora created the Traveling Golfer so he could take viewers on video golf trips to some of the most exciting golf locations. The show won a first place award for golf television broadcasts in the prestigious International Network of Golf Media Awards, presented at the PGA Merchandise Show in January.

The Traveling Golfer appears as a series of monthly shows hosted by Leodora, who has 15 years of experience in televised golf shows. The featured destination stays on the website for one month, before being replaced by a new show. The old shows are archived for continued viewing on the home website, www.travelinggolfervideo.com. Past episodes also can be found on Xfinity On-Demand from Comcast.

At least, Nicklaus took pity on the golfers. For every brute of an uphill hole, there is relief in the form of a downhill hole.

Two of the longest holes – No. 16, 428 from the blues; No. 17, 440 from the blues – play extremely downhill. Known as the “canyon holes”, slightly errant tee shots will bounce back into play on the fairways.

No. 6 is another downhill hole ... but not to the advantage of the golfer. It is only 135 yards from the blue tees and the green hangs on a cliff atop the ocean. From the second the golfer makes contact with the golf ball, there are perilous moments of anxiety as the shot hangs high against an azure blue backdrop. Finding the green is usually followed by a loud exhale of relief.

No. 13 is another spectacular par 3 – this time with the ocean and a forest of granite rock spires lurking immediately to the right of the green. It is 122 yards of nail-biting anxiety from the blue tees.

These are just some of the high points of an adventure on the links at Quivira. But that adventure can be fully rewarded once the wind-whipped golfer arrives back at the Pueblo Bonito hotel. Whether it is the adults-only Pacifica hotel, right up against the beach and the crashing waves of the ocean, or the Sunset Beach hotel, with a view from above the cliffs, hospitality and comfort reign supreme.

The restaurants are superb – offering everything from award-winning gourmet Mexican cuisine, to a sushi restaurant that serves some of the freshest fish from the nearby sea.

The pools are aqua playgrounds, with large whirlpools, wading pools and swim-up bars. The spa is world-class. The landscaped areas in between the buildings set an elegant atmosphere, both day and night.

“Our hotel philosophy is to provide the absolute finest in service, food and accommodations,” explains Mizraim Corpus, the general manager at Pacifica. “We offer 24-hour room service. All of our dining, with the exception of breakfast, is a la carte. We insist that our staff pays attention to every detail of our guests.”

If you are looking for ordinary Mexican food, go to Taco Bell. Unique, high-end offerings are the norm from the Quivira chefs. One appetizer was called Cactus Blood – mushroom mixture, goat cheese, vinaigrette shallots and red tuna. A featured entrée – Mar y Montana – was fresh handmade pasta, cooked in chipotle pitahaya sauce, Kalamata olives, cherry tomatoes, shrimp and steak.

“There is the rest of Mexico, and then there is Quivira,” says Jose Luis Mogollon, chief development officer for the entire project. “We are a bit different ... a cut above.

“Quivira is separated from all of the tourist activity in Cabo San Lucas by the mountain. It makes for a quieter, more serene setting. Yet, for those who want it, the party is only five minutes away by car. It’s the best of both worlds.”

In town, not only is there the celebrated night life of Cabo – with its bars (Cabo Wabo), restaurants (The Office) and nightclubs (Giggling Marlin) – but there is plenty to do during the day also.

Companies, such as Cabo Adventures, provide a long list of offerings: whale watching (November to April), snorkeling, mountain biking, zip lines, scuba diving and sailing on luxury yachts. For those wanting something totally different, there is even a camel safari.

Or, for those who prefer doing absolutely nothing, there is a magnificent beach ... with hammocks and even tented suspended beds for massages or napping.

But don’t get so distracted that you forget the golf. Quivira is an unforgettable golf experience. The early explorers may not have found gold in the Los Cabos region, but today’s vacationers are discovering a wealth of treasured memories.

Myrtle Beach Golf Courses Reopen in Aftermath of Storm

Barefoot Resort Golf Clubhouse Hole #18

Grand Strand Avoids Worst of Storm's Damage, Welcomes Golfers Back to the Area

Myrtle Beach, S.C. – Emerging from the aftermath of a storm that brought record rainfall to South Carolina last weekend, Myrtle Beach area golf courses have reopened all along the Grand Strand.

A 60-mile stretch of Carolinas coastline, the Grand Strand absorbed more than 20 inches of rain in some locales, but the area avoided the worst of the storm's damage.

Thirty-two courses reopened Tuesday and that number will have nearly tripled by Thursday morning, when nearly every layout will be open in anticipation of a busy fall weekend.

"We are happy to be able to welcome golfers to Myrtle Beach this weekend and throughout the fall," said Bill Golden, Myrtle Beach Golf Holiday president. "We were extremely fortunate to have avoided the extensive damage other parts of the state endured. Even as we get back to the work of helping people enjoy a golf vacation, our thoughts will never be far from our friends throughout the state who are dealing with situations that are much more severe."

Myrtle Beach golf courses didn't escape unscathed. Every layout in the area had to deal with standing water and bunker erosion, but when the water receded, most course operators were relieved to find structural damage was minimal.

"We had a lot of water, but we didn't experience any significant damage," said Steve Mays, director of sales and marketing for Founders Group International, which operates 22 area courses. "Once the water receded, we were ready to go. Golfers shouldn't see any adverse effects this weekend and certainly beyond."

For most of the next week, the Myrtle Beach area is expected to have near perfect weather. High temperatures are forecast to be in upper 70s and low 80s and will be accompanied by a slight breeze, which will help further aide courses in drying out.

"I think players will be pleasantly surprised at the conditions, given what everyone at the beach has gone through," said Dave Genevro, general manager at Barefoot Resort, home of the four of the area's premier courses. "I've been here 15 years and I saw water in places I've never seen it before, but conditions are going to be better than people expect, based on what they saw on TV."

Yadkin Valley NC Pairing Wine and Golf

Cross Creek Country Club in Mount Airy - By Sam Dean Photography

By Reid Nelson

Even for a native North Carolinian who has spent their entire career as a writer, it's difficult to describe what I was expecting as I prepared to make my first visit to North Carolina's Yadkin Valley wine country. But whatever I was expecting, it most assuredly wasn't what I found.

Why are we talking about wines in a golf-specific publication? We could say the answer is as simple as golf's "19th hole" tradition that has long brought players together over an adult beverage following a round. But actually, it's more purposeful than that.

As a way to broaden its appeal to visitors and would-be visitors, tourism industry professionals in the Yadkin Valley have come up with a "pairing" that grabbed my attention – that being wine and golf. Though maybe not an expert on either, I have spent more than 30 years promoting golf facilities and writing about the sport at every level, all the while indulging my love for and trying to expand my knowledge of wines. Though certainly no sommelier, I like to think I'd carry a single-digit handicap, should the wine industry ever start to rate hobbyist oenophiles.

So when Craig Distl, a longtime friend and PR colleague, extended the invitation to see – and taste – what the Yadkin Valley has to offer on both fronts, I gladly accepted, both anxiously excited and yet curiously reserved about what the trip might reveal.

I mean, how good would these North Carolina wines be? When I was growing up, the only wines being produced in the Tar Heel State were the muscadine and scuppernon pressings folks were making from the vines in their backyards. And from my recollections, those ranged from little more than grape juice to something just this side of vinegar.

Though the offerings of professional winemakers would surely be more sophisticated, I still had to wonder how these Yadkin Valley wines would compare to vintages from famed regions with names like Bordeaux and Burgundy, Napa and Sonoma, Tuscany and Friuli or Marlborough and McLaren Vale.

Before getting into the specifics of the trip, a few facts: First, did you know that North Carolina is the only place in the world where every major type of grape is grown? It's true. And second, North Carolina now boasts more than 100 wineries spread across every region of the state.

J.W. Ray pouring wine at a tasting at JOLO Winery.

But it was the 1.4 million acre Yadkin Valley, just north of Statesville and west of Winston Salem, that was the first area in the state to be designated as an American Viticultural Area. At the heart of North Carolina's first official AVA is Surry County, where towns like Elkin, Dobson, Pilot Mountain and Mount Airy – Andy Griffith's real-life hometown that provided the inspiration for television's fictitious Mayberry – used to be surrounded by thousands of acres of tobacco fields.

Today, some tobacco is still being grown here and there, but many of the sloping hillsides are now graced by manicured vineyards where carefully trained two-armed vines are producing vitis vinifera – from popular varieties like Chardonnay, Viognier, Petit Sirah and Cabernet Sauvignon, as well as lesser known but equally interesting grapes with names like Vidal Blanc, Cynthiana, Tannat and Chambourcin.

And why not? The area is centered at a latitude almost identical to California's Napa Valley and only eight degrees or so south of the legendary Bordeaux region of France. And while the Carolinas are more humid than California, the generally rocky slopes of the Blue Ridge foothills are ideal for growing grapes.

Just as the area has welcomed grapes from all over the world, it has also attracted talent from many of the famed winemaking regions, both domestically and abroad. But just like the wines, much of the grape growing and winemaking talent is home-grown, thanks to the Viticulture and Enology Program that has been part of the curriculum at Surry Community College in Dobson for a decade now. Offering three distinct paths of study – viticulture, enology and marketing – the wine-specific degree program is recognized as one of the best on the East Coast.

So with all of that as mental fodder, it was off to experience this "new" North Carolina wine country. The idea was, we would enjoy a round of golf in the morning, and experience the wineries, tasting rooms and restaurants in the afternoon and evening. Distl had put together an ambitious itinerary, but looking back, I wouldn't change a thing. Here goes:

description of the Joe Lee course that awaited us. Opened in 1973, it underwent an extensive revision in 2006 by Greensboro's Kris Spence, who has worked on many classic area courses including Cape Fear in Wilmington, Mimosa Hills in Morganton and the Grove Park Inn in Asheville.

Cross Creek is a private club with 400 overall members, but with only 120 full golf members, the course is always in great shape and uncrowded, regardless of day or time. And on this perfect Saturday morning – sunny and low 70s – it was serenely so.

Though just under 6,800 yards from the back tees, Cross Creek is a solid test of every part of one's game. Lee used the topography, particularly on the more hilly back nine, to shape some shots and frame others, all the while demanding one's full attention if you are to score well. The new green complexes Spence introduced recall classic templates from golf's Golden Age – like C.B. Macdonald's "thumbprint" green at 14 or the famed Redan from North Berwick at 15. There's even a tribute to Augusta National's 18th green within the contours of the 12th at Cross Creek.

With our first round behind us, it was time to head to our first winery where we would check in for the next two nights.

Yes, you can stay at a number of the area wineries and we were fortunate that the "newlywed chateau" at JOLO Winery & Vineyards was available for two of our nights in wine country. But more about the accommodations later.

Upon arrival at JOLO, overlooking Pilot Mountain, we headed straight for End Posts, the intimate and distinctly up-scale restaurant adjacent to the winery's elegant tasting room, for lunch, where white linen and Riedel stems provided perfect foreshadowing of what was to come.

This was not going to be your average Saturday lunch. In fact, the toughest part was deciding what to order, but given we were at a winery, it made sense to work backward, picking our wines first and then deciding on our entrée.

The plan worked to perfection as JOLO's 2014 Grey Ghost, a Vidal Blanc that develops its dry, crispness thanks to all-stainless fermentation, paired seamlessly with Chef _____'s seared sea scallops served over a citrus risotto. And the berry, pepper and spice undertones of the 2014 JOLOTAGE were the ideal complement to the island spices in the chef's jerk chicken, served over spring mix greens, with rice fritters. (Expect the rice fritters to be on the menu, solo, as an appetizer soon. They are that good.)

JOLO Winery & Vineyards a boutique winery

From the lunch table, it was just a couple of steps into the tasting room, where we sampled other JOLO offerings, like the 2014 Crimson Creek, a 100 percent Chambourcin, which recalls the classic pinot noir of Burgundy with its light, dry elegance, and the 2014 Pilot Fog, a deeper red that could be mistaken for a Cotes de Rhone. But there's no Syrah in this one; it's exclusively estate grown Cynthiana grapes.

Like the intimate End Posts bistro, JOLO is a boutique winery that produces wines in such limited quantities, some of its offerings, like its namesake JOLOTAGE, come in individually numbered bottles. Owner/winemaker J.W. Ray, a native Bostonian who looks much younger than his 46 years, owned his own restaurant at 19, worked at two five-star hotel properties and co-founded Learn.com before selling part of his stake in corporate America – he still operates several successful businesses apart from the wine industry – and he and his wife, Kristen, bought 80 acres of Carolina hill country and planted their own vineyards in 2010. JOLO's first vintages were corked in the fall of 2013 and now, just two short years later, Ray and JOLO are setting a standard that is going to raise the image of North Carolina wines far beyond the Piedmont foothills.

After the tasting at JOLO, there was hardly time to rest a minute before it was time to head for Shelton Winery in nearby Dobson. After touring the winery, we tasted several wines worthy of one's cellar, including the unoaked Bin 17 Chardonnay, a fruit-forward quaffer with a clean finish; the Estate Chard, whose oaky vanilla notes gave way to a buttery finish thanks to its barrel fermentation; and a very dry Sauvignon Blanc with a grapefruit and limestone profile that might make one think they were drinking a sauv-blanc from Down Under.

We also tasted some interesting Shelton reds, like the Estate Cabernet Sauvignon and the Estate Cab Franc, both worthy of any table. But when we sat down to dinner at Shelton's Harvest Grill, we opted for the limited release Two Five Nine Petit Verdot to go with Chef Paul Lange's perfectly medium rare Balsamic Grilled Duck Breast and his Bacon-Wrapped Smoked Pork Tenderloin. The last of the wine was even better with the chocolate ganache in the Pralines and Peanut Butter Mousse Torte dessert.

A native New Yorker – the state, not the city – Lange is a CIA-trained chef who worked at Ryan's Restaurant – the up-scale steakhouse, not the chain buffet – in Winston Salem for eight years before coming to the Harvest Grill, where he's been delighting guests with his gourmet creations for 10 years. # Alabama's Robert Trent Jones Golf Trail DEBUTS NEW WINTER GOLF MEMBERSHIPS

Birmingham, Ala - October 15, 2015 - As Old Man Winter approaches, golfers can now rejoice. Alabama's Robert Trent Jones Golf Trail is launching a new RTJ Winter Membership featuring unlimited golf November through February at nine RTJ locations. Golfers may purchase Winter Memberships in monthly increments for up to four months. Winter Memberships are $150 per month per person or $225 per couple per month. Tee times are scheduled within seven days of play. Carts are not required but are available for an additional fee.

"When snow starts to fall, snowbirds head down I-65 toward Alabama's beaches," said John Cannon, president of the Robert Trent Jones Golf Trail. "Snowbirds and other golfers have a great reason to pack their clubs and experience some of the best golf on earth playable all year long," said Cannon. "RTJ has recently been named one of the best buddy trip destinations by Golf Channel's Matt Ginella and this Winter Membership encourages golfers to come experience it for themselves. The Alabama courses played by the PGA TOUR and the LPGA are included in these offerings," he said. "You can play four months of unlimited golf on the RTJ Golf Trail for roughly the same price as one round at Pebble Beach, Trump National Doral or TPC Sawgrass. Golfers looking for great courses at affordable prices, come play RTJ this winter. Between the variety of golf courses, great BBQ and local craft beers, you might need to extend your stay."

The RTJ Winter Membership offer runs between Nov. 1, 2015 and Feb. 29, 2016. Memberships can be purchased in one month increments and are available at the individual RTJ locations. RTJ Ross Bridge and the Lakewood Club are not part of this Winter Membership promotion, but will be available for play at discounted rates for all Winter members. Please make tee time reservations directly with the individual sites within seven days of play. Olde Beau Golf & Country Club in Roaring Gap Hole #15

Cheese “Sushi” Rolls sound? And those are just some of his appetizers.

Sunday

Sunday started early with a drive to Olde Beau Golf & Country Club, located just a mile or so on the western side of the Eastern Continental Divide in Roaring Gap. The late Billy Satterfield not only developed the private residential community, but designed the course, as well. In doing so, he gave up some prime real estate to the golf course, as several holes afford 100-plus-mile views.

Olde Beau, named for Satterfield’s beloved English bulldog, is not a course for the faint of heart. Dramatic elevation changes lead to greens often perched perilously close to mountain drop-offs. But it isn’t as impossible as it first looks either. PGA Tour winner Bill Haas set the course record, shooting 64 on the 6,600-yard, par-72 layout. And Keith Hall, who overcame being left deaf and mute from a childhood bout with meningitis to become the first African-American to earn a full golf scholarship to Ohio State, matched Haas when he played Olde Beau as a collegian.

After golf, we headed for Mount Airy and a combination lunch and wine tasting at Old North State Winery’s downtown tasting room, which doubles as a popular restaurant, deli and all-around meeting place. The menu includes everything from gourmet sandwiches and salads to wraps, flatbread pizza and more. But when I go back, I’m ordering the Hickory Smoked Pimento Cheese Dip from the appetizer menu – homemade pimento cheese topped with crumbled apple wood-smoked bacon, baked until a perfect crunchy crust just starts to conceal the gooey goodness below – only I’m going to see if I can get it as an entrée. The menu said “served with baked pita chips,” but ours came with toasted crostini – something else I’ll ask for again.

Old North State produces more than a dozen wines, both varietals and blends, most sporting the same Fish Hippy name and logo as the popular apparel line also based in Mount Airy. That’s because the same folks who started the clothing company also founded and own the winery. Among the notable varietals are a medium-bodied Merlot, a lightly spiced Cab Franc and a well-balanced Reisling offsets a crisp acidity with just a bit of sweetness.

But the real stars at Old North State may be the blends. The Fish Hippy Bare Bones white is an all-stainless presentation of Chardonnay and Vidal Blanc that can be enjoyed with food or completely solo. The Fish Hippy Old Gentleman Spring House is a white with Reisling introduced into the mix and aged in American oak to develop a more complex character that complements a variety of dishes, from seafood and chicken to pastas with cream sauces.

Moving to the reds, the Fish Hippy Soul is a blend of Malbec, Petit Verdot, Cab Franc and Tannat that goes great with just about anything off the grill, thanks to its berries and spice profile. And ONS’s Restless Soul, which drops the Cab Franc from the blend, delivers a smoky, leathery nose, but with its soft tannins, is lighter and more fruity in the mouth, making it a versatile red for all occasions.

The tough part about visiting Old North State was having the discipline to just taste and not drink – especially with the Spring House white. But there was another winery to visit.

At Round Peak Vineyards, we met owner Ken Gulaian, who literally got off the tractor to pour some of his Round Peak and Skull Camp – lighter, generally sweeter wines aimed at younger consumers – wines. Particularly interesting were the Round Peak 2013 Chardonnay, another clean-drinking, all-stainless chard devoid of the butter fats produced by the malolactic fermentation process preferred by so many California wineries, and the just released La Petite Vandage, a 50/50 blend of Chardonnay and Viognier that delivers citrus and floral notes, both in the nose and on the palate.

But the most intriguing wine at Round Peak was a “crazy” blend – it is named El Vino Loco, after all – of six grapes: Mourvedre, Tannat, Cabernet Sauvignon, Barbera, Malbec and Petit Verdot. Spanish in origin but also grown in the Rhone and Provence regions of France, as well as in the U.S. and Australia, Mourvedre is almost always a supporting character in red blends, probably because of its high tannins and typically high Brix levels. But 32 percent of El Vino Loco is Mourvedre, making it the predominant grape in the blend.

Before we knew it, it was time to leave Round Peak, located just outside Mount Airy, and head back to End Posts for dinner. Why the same restaurant twice in such a short trip, you ask. For one, it’s that good! But more to the point, on Sunday nights, End Post offers a completely different dining experience, a fixed menu that, at $24 a person, is a treat and a value not to be missed.

Tonight’s menu started with pickled veggies over field greens, followed by a duo of pork – smoked pork belly and roasted pork loin – with Brussels sprouts, potato rosti and peach compote. Needless to say, the entrée offered the perfect opportunity to order

Men's Amateur Team Wins 2015 AGA Challenge Cup

Exeter, Pa - The final event of the 2015 season took place on Sunday, October 25, 2015 with the Men's Amateur team successfully defending its title in the AGA Challenge Cup.

The Anthracite Golf Association annual Challenge Cup, is a match-play event comprised of two teams, a Men's Amateur squad and a Senior Amateur squad. Teams were chosen based on the final standings of the Player of the Year and Senior Player of the Year point charts. Player of the Year points are awarded based upon top finishes for all AGA events.

The day began with a round of golf at Fox Hill Country Club followed by a presentation to the top AGA Amateur and Senior Amateur golfers for 2015. Elmhurst Country Club's Pat Ross captured the AGA Player of the Year title, while Paupack Hills Country Club's Bob Andrejko claimed the AGA Senior Player of the Year, earning an exemption into the 2016 North-South Tournament in Pinehurst, North Carolina.

This year's Challenge Cup Tournament was secured by the men's amateur team for the fourth consecutive year. The score of this Ryder Cup format challenge ended at 19 1/4 points for the amateur team and 13 points for the senior squad.

The Anthracite Golf Association would like to thank all of the competitors and the Fox Hill Country Club for hosting the final event of our 2015 season. The Anthracite Golf Association would also like to thank Dennis Corvo for his time and efforts and P.J. Farrell for compiling the Player of the Year points.

Pat Ross & Mike Bonavoglia Capture 2015 AGA Robinson Fall Fourball Title.

Clarks Summit, PA - On Monday, October 12th, at the Country Club of Scranton, Elmhurst Country Club's Pat Ross and Mike Bonavoglia combined to card a round of 8-under par 64 to capture the AGA Robinson Fall Fouball Championship. Honesdale Golf Club's Jim Gardas and Eric Williams finished in second on a match-of-cards 35-32-67. Two teams from Glenmaura National Golf Club finished third and fourth at 5-under par 67, Steve Hudacek and his son Chas (Hudacek) as well as Matt Solfanelli and Matt Dougherty.

Paupack Hills Country Club's Bob Andrejko and Steve Mazur captured the senior division title with a round of 4-under par 68. The Country Club of Scranton's Ed Mesko and Mark Occhipinti finished in second with a round of 70.

Huntsville Golf Club's Todd Vonderheid had the shot of the day with a eagle on the par four #8.

Hennefer & Brown Lead the Way

Newtown Square, Pa. – On a fall afternoon worthy of a postcard, 60 teams converged on picturesque Aronimink Golf Club for the annual Pro-Official Championship. The Pro-Official features one PGA Professional partnered with an officer from his club, in a Net Four-Ball competition (better ball of partners).

It didn't take long for excitement to filter through the course as Trent Miller, playing alongside his partner Judd Caruso (Belles Springs CC) holed his first swing of the day on the par-3 14th hole at Aronimink Golf Club. As if a hole-in-one wasn't good enough, the swing also earned Belles Springs a new multi-passenger vehicle from tournament sponsor Club Car LLC and Golf Cars Inc.

Leading the way in the tournament was the team of Bob Hennefer (Indian Spring CC) and his partner Randy Brown. The duo overcame a bogey on the par-3 17th, their first hole of the day, to post an impressive score of 14-under-par (56), good enough for a five shot victory. The pair was helped in large part due to the play of Hennefer who carded a 4-under-par (66) on his own ball. Hennefer posted five birdies along with the tournament's second hole-in-one on the par-3 5th to help secure the win.

Philadelphia PGA Wins The 25th Anniversary of the Challenge Cup Matches

Malvern, Pa. – The 25th anniversary of the Philadelphia Challenge Matches were played on a rainy afternoon at Applebrook Golf Club in Malvern, Pa. The Challenge Matches, a Ryder Cup style event, pits 12 Philadelphia PGA Professionals against 12 of the top amateur golfers from the Golf Association of Philadelphia in a Ryder Cup style event. Teams play twelve singles matches and six four-ball matches, better ball of partners, concurrently for a total of 18 available points.

After a loss in 2013, the Philadelphia PGA regained the trophy in 2014 meaning they only needed to earn 9 points to retain the cup for another year. As the groups began to finish in became clear that the Professionals from the Philadelphia PGA were in top form. The Philadelphia PGA managed to win all but two of the singles matches and all but one Four-Ball matches en route to the their largest win since 2009 (16-2). After several years of away from the event the priceless Philadelphia Challenge Match Cup was reinstated for the 25th anniversary. The Philadelphia PGA will take ownership of the Cup until next October.

Both the Philadelphia PGA and the Golf Association of Philadelphia would like to thank the membership and staff of Applebrook Golf Club for their support of the Challenge Matches. Additionally both organizations thank our uniform supplier Donald Ross and Mr. Jim Ravina as well as Ping Golf and Mr. Jim Wilson.

Welcome to Dom DiJulia's world.

A lot of people in the Philadelphia area are already familiar with what he does, which is teach players of all handicap levels how to get better at golf. But now the word will spread, thanks to the new Golf Channel Academy, which has selected the best coaches from across the country to be part of a program designed to make it easier for amateurs who can't get enough of this goofy game to experience all the benefits that high-quality instruction has to offer.

DiJulia, the namesake son of the longtime Saint Joseph's Athletic Director, works out of his facility at New Hope's Jericho National Golf Club in Bucks County. He didn't need to be recognized like this to be known as one of the best. Even if you're the only one from Pennsylvania to get selected. Still ...

"It's definitely an honor," said DiJulia, a two-time Philadelphia PGA Teacher of the Year who's been a PGA Master Pro since 2002 and listed among Golf Digest's Top Five in the state for the past decade as well. "It can be good for everyone. This is an opportunity to bring more awareness to what we're trying to do to help players improve their game, which will allow them to enjoy it more. And we can keep them working on their game. We can have an impact. That's something you can be passionate about.

"Even if they're only playing one round a week, we can get them to be less frustrated out there. Golf is a great challenge. And it's a great activity, if you understand how to pursue the activity. That's the rewarding part. Let's all raise the bar together."

The concept is to have a dedicated network of professionals become a hands-on extension of the Golf Channel Academy programming. The joint philosophy will be based on proven methods that have stood the test of time and elevated each of the individuals to the top of their profession.

"Ultimately, it will encourage students to play more golf," said Mike McCarley, Golf Channel's president. "With this goal in mind, (we're) committed to engaging golfers through instruction to make the game more accessible, inviting and fun."

While a project of this magnitude is going to take time to really take root, those involved want to be able to say that through the development of these relationships what will evolve is an ongoing devotion to long-lasting improvement. It's a process, one that's going to take a commitment from both sides of the equation to make it work.

If nothing else, it is unprecedented. And very much a collective operation that hopefully will draw upon diverse experiences to enhance the end result.

"The people who came up with this idea thought that part of the problem in golf is that no one knows the truth," said DiJulia, who's been in the business for a quarter-century. "No one's marketing the idea that if you want to enjoy golf, you really need a coach who can lead you through the journey. There's marketing being spent in a lot of areas, but no one's educating the public that golf is really cool if you have a relationship with a coach.

"Everyone's promoting their own thing. Why not put our marketing budgets together to grow the game? Let's help golfers, plural, let's help the industry. Coaching is different than one swing for everybody. How do you take a player and make them better? It's broad and deep. There's a lot of topics. How do you give them a strategy, give them homework to help them practice? Hold them accountable. But the problem is, if you want to complement each other, it takes some effort. The partnership we needed was the Golf Channel. You learn what works and what doesn't, you chip away over time, see what good we have done, and how can we do it better. Look in the mirror.

"We've shared a lot of knowledge, through these outlets.

PPGS 2015 Fall Pro-Pro Woodstone C.C. Par 72

With an unusually warm October day at Woodstone Country Club we had 12 teams compete in the Fall Pro-Pro. We were surprised with a few good scores despite the tricky greens. There were 4 skins on the day highlighted with two of the skins being won with eagles. John Kulhamer eagled the par 5 hole #3 and Corey McAlarney had a Hole in One on Hole #5.

Thanks to all of our local golf vendors we were also able to compete for 4 closest to the pin prizes and 2 long drives.

The team of Jared Cottell and Corey McAlarney were able to win the event with a (-7) 65 to win by one.

Bright Primaries Highlight Antigua's Spring 2016 Men's Performance-72 Fashion Golf Wear Collection

Antigua Performance-72 Striped Polo Shirt

Antigua Performance-72 Pitch Polo Shirt

Antigua Performance-72 Gray Stripe Polo Shirt

PEORIA, AZ - The Antigua Group, Inc. - one of the nation's leading designers and marketers of lifestyle and golf apparel under the distinguished Antigua brand - announces its Spring 2016 Men's Performance-72 Fashion Golf Wear Collection.

The direction for Antigua's 2016 men's fashion golfwear reflects current trends taking shape in fashion, from couture to ready-to-wear. The palette influence has swung from the previous season's electrified brights to now expressing the most up-to-date and utmost simplistic bright color stories found universally in fashion products from shoes, bags and belts to men's and women's golfwear. The primary color story is succinctly 2016, and propels this new men's collection.

"Envision the austere geometrics of Mondrian or a Rubik's Cube," says Sean Gregg, vice president of product development and marketing support. "Stripped down to the base colors themselves, they're bright red, yellow, green, royal and purple. But infused into performance fabrics accompanied with blocks, stripes or textures of neutrals and complementing hues, they become so vividly fresh and fun that renaming the colors to Fire, Sunburst, Verdant, Hypnotic and Mardi Gras is more indicative of their current fashion status."

What makes this season's color palette so unique is not the individual use of any of these colors -- years past have seen a bright red included in a color story or a bright green as a complement to an otherwise soft palette - it is the simultaneous use of all of, and only the primary colors. "Seeing the boldness of these colors offered in tandem is such a refreshingly bold punch of newness that it's compelling to want to possess them all," says Gregg.

Antigua's Spring 2016 men's and women's fashion styles complement the color direction. Clean to their core. This season's collection of golfwear styles and styling details equally mirror the momentum that fashion giants and forecasters alike have committed to as a representation of this year's fashion ideal.

Antigua's Spring 2016 Men's Performance-72 Fashion Golf Wear Collection includes both of our state-of-the-art moisture-wicking technologies.

DESERT DRY™ is a moisture-wicking technology created exclusively for Antigua, to absorb and wick moisture quickly and evenly. The Desert Dry product family includes any garment using a fabric weight of 150 gsm or heavier. Typically fabrics over 150 gsm offer more body and improved drape for the customers who don't like the ultra-lightweight "clingy" fabrics currently in the market.

DESERT DRY™ XTRA-LITE (D2XL) combines Antigua's exclusive DESERT DRY™ moisture-wicking feature with specially constructed ultra-light fabrics for maximum wicking performance and optimum comfort. The D2XL product family includes any garment using a fabric weight of 150 gsm or lighter. These fabrics have been specially engineered to be lightweight while not being overly sheer. This is possible through the use of ultra-fine yarns which gives a fabric more body while not dramatically increasing the weight.

So the answer is yes. We can make this happen. It's not a one swing for all (existence)."

You spend some time on the range with DiJulia and it doesn't take long to understand where he's coming from. Before you even get to the actual analysis and feedback, he's asking you questions about how you got to where you're at. All swings aren't created equal. Not hardly. He works to get you to understand why you hit the ball the way you do, and goes from there. It's anything but off the rack shopping. Because there is no easy or quick fix, regardless of what some ads we've all seen over the years might have you think. So we spent a lot of time on my background, before we got to the real work. And afterward, he takes the time to sit down and show you on the computer just what you were talking about, before supplying you with a list of stuff to concentrate on until the next lesson.

I have to admit it was very eye-opening. And I found the approach quite refreshing. I didn't feel any pressure to change a bunch of flaws. Instead it was mostly low-key. I never once felt uncomfortable. Don't underestimate that. He put me at ease, which might just be much of the battle.

"We're going to be sharing ideas," DiJulia emphasized. "Part of the selection process is, are you open to that. We'll be measuring outcomes. We're all going to be held accountable. Let's see why you're having success in your neighborhood. That's the way they're looking at it. If it's done right, we can significantly affect more golfers. Just tell the players the facts. It's not rocket science, but there is a science behind it. We know this stuff. Let us help you."

Because everyone who picks up a club just wants to get better. Simple as that. Sometimes, it's a matter of picking the proper vehicle.

"The culture right now is, I'm one tip away, one thought away, from playing my best golf," DiJulia said with a knowing smile. "So they keep on switching their (direction). The irony is, people that search for the magic cure get the opposite of what they want. They want consistency, yet they keep on changing their thought. What a coach can do is help you define what works for you, where he's going. Let's train over time so that you'll get good at this. It's an investment.

"We're fortunate in that we work with four of the top 10 juniors in Pennsylvania. And somebody will come to us and say, 'My son played with one of your players.' And they're very open. People want to know. It's not hard. We're able to show them what the journey's going to look like, not matter what the journey is."

The joint effort extends to all facets of the operation.

"One of the goals we're working toward is a set measurement system," DiJulia explained. "So we can measure skill, whether you're in North Carolina or Pennsylvania or Alaska. Here's the state of your game, so we can have standards. We have a lot of testing games, that we kind of have in common and all support. Not everyone teaches the same way. There's going to be uniqueness. You have to be yourself. We have different personalities. Some of us are strong communicators. Others are stronger technically. And those who are better with the feel of playing the game. We can learn from each other, give our combined energies into making the group better."

If that sounds like something you might be interested in, for more information you can visit DiJulia's website at www.dijuliagolf.com or email him at dom@dijuliagolf.com. He can also be reached via Twitter (@dijuliagolf). Or, if you're still an old-school guy like me, you can phone him at 215-862-0945.

Best Advice While Driving Through Florida: Make a Pit Stop at the World Golf Village

World Golf Hall Of Fame Slammer Squire Course St Augustine Florida

By Tony Leodora Traveling Golfer

For many golfers, winter golf travel plans will include a trip to/through Florida. Plenty of golf courses. Warm weather. Why not?

And, while there are many varied destinations for golfers within Florida, there is only one destination that should be part of travel plans for ALL golfers visiting the Sunshine State.

At least once in their lifetime.

That is the World Golf Village.

Many have seen signs for it, as they drive north or south along I-95, near Saint Augustine. Many also aren't aware of what it is.

In short, the World Golf Village is a veritable theme park for golfers. DisneyWorld, Universal Studios and SeaWorld ... all rolled into one. Including 36 holes of the best golf in the state.

The centerpiece of the World Golf Village is the World Golf Hall of Fame. This unusual Hall of Fame is unique, in that it honors both men and women at a single site.

Originally opened in 1974 and located in Pinehurst, North Carolina, it merged with two other entities – the PGA of America Hall of Fame and the Hall of Fame of Women's Golf. Construction of the new facility near Saint Augustine began in 1996 and it opened in 1998.

The Hall of Fame Museum features a permanent exhibition and a rolling program of temporary exhibitions. Designed by museum design firm Ralph Appelbaum Associates, the Hall of Fame and exhibition area contains exhibits on the game's history, heritage, and techniques; major players and organizations, golf course design, equipment, and dress; and new directions, such as ecological concerns in course management.

"It really is one of the best Hall of Fame properties in the world," says Dave Cordero, director of public relations for the WGHOE. "There is so much to see and do. An avid golf fan could easily spend an entire day inside the building."

Some of the activities/exhibits include:

- A golf simulator, where visitors can play courses such as The Old Course at St. Andrews, Firestone CC, the Plantation Course at Kapalua, and many more.
  - Past inductee exhibits, where the exploits, accomplishments and artifacts of previous entrants to the WGHOE are celebrated.
  - An 18-hole, natural-grass putting course is one of the Hall's two outdoor exhibits that allow visitors to test their skills at the home of golf's greatest players. One round is included with each Hall of Fame admission.
  - The Royal and Ancient Game exhibit allows visitors to learn about more than five centuries of golf lore, from its formative years in Scotland to its global expansion. Included is a live-size replica of the famous Swilcan Burn Bridge, modeled after the original at the Old Course at St. Andrews. There is an extensive history of The Open Championship and the R&A. Visitors are invited to test their skill using replicated clubs from the 1800s on the indoor putting green.
  - The Shell's Wonderful World of Golf Theater is an outshoot from the famous television show of the same name. Theater space on the second floor has been dedicated to the show and more than 50 historic episodes are on file. They include footage of famous Hall of Fame members, including: Gary Player vs.

Cedarbrook Country Club in Elkin - By Sam Dean Photography

another bottle of JOLOTAGE, the last of which perfectly complemented the Salame al Cioccolato our waitress, End Post captain Justine Gilliland, suggested.

(Interesting tidbit here: when we raved about the “chocolate salami” dessert, Gilliland replied, “Thanks. That’s all mine.” Turns out, our “waitress” is a Culinary Institute of America-trained pastry chef and her dessert, which really looks like slices of a chocolate salami and is served with her own nut brittle, once won first place at the Denver Food and Wine Festival. Talk about a high-end restaurant.)

Monday

As he was designing Forest Oaks Country Club in Greensboro in 1962 and Grandfather Golf and Country Club near Linville in '69, Ellis Maples was creating Cedarbrook Country Club in Elkin, which is where we headed Monday morning.

No it didn't take him eight years to do the golf course. He simply did it in stages – one nine in '62 and the other in '69. The result is a near 6,900-yard layout that hugs the rolling foothills in such a way playing strategy is dictated as much by the land, itself, as the features Maples introduced with his classic design. The land is so perfect for golf that the architect imposed only minimal bunkering, often choosing instead to allow the slopes and runoffs to protect the intended target areas.

Whether traversing open heathland, like at the first and ninth holes, or wending its way through tree-lined corridors, as the majority of holes do, the golf course blends into its surroundings in a seamless manner that is easy on the eye, yet testing of one's skill. And the staff, headed up by general manager Zim Zimmerman, takes every opportunity to make even the first-time visitor feel like they've been a member for years.

After golf and lunch at Cedarbrook, we headed to Grassy Creek Vineyards, located just outside Elkin on the site of the former Klondike Dairy farm. There, we met Wayne and Joyce Moore, who were kind enough to open up the tasting room on a day it would ordinarily be closed to guests.

And once again, we were impressed with the overall quality of wines we experienced. Sitting in a tasting room that was once part of the farm's red horse barn, we sampled several Grassy Creek wines, including an unoaked 2008 Chardonnay, whose subtle honey, pear and light floral notes left room for the grape to speak for itself. The 2011 Barrel Chard was fuller, more complex, with a butter-and-oak character gave away its cooperage.

The 2010 Red Barn Blend could be termed a “reverse” super Tuscan, if you will, since Merlot (60 percent), not Sangiovese, is the predominant juice. In fact, Sangiovese, just 10 percent of the blend, plays a supporting role in this one, which is 30 percent Syrah. The Red Barn Blend is also lighter in tannins and easier to drink than most super Tuscans, making this one easy to pair with anything from burgers to pizza to a steak.

Grassy Creek Winery

Lodging

The Yadkin Valley Golf tourism group offers several golf-and-wine packages from as low as $207 per person for two rounds of golf, two wine tastings and two nights' lodging. There are a number of lodging partners within the group, including hotels and bed and breakfasts, as well as accommodations at some of the vineyards and wineries.

During our recent trip to the area, we spent the first two or our three nights at the “newlywed chateau” at JOLO Winery & Vineyards. Located just steps from the tasting lodge and End Posts Bistro, the cottage is an elegant king bedroom and bath suite, with its own private deck. With the exception of colorful shutters and small window boxes, the relatively unadorned exterior belies what awaits guests inside – vaulted ceilings, chandeliers in both the bedroom and vanity area, a large walk-in shower with body jets, Keurig coffee maker and a large, flat-screen HDTV.

Like the boutique winery surrounding it, the newlywed chateau represents a unique experience for discerning guests.

Our last night in wine country was spent at the Fairfield Inn and Suites in Elkin. Again, “unique” describes this particular Fairfield, which was developed as a prototype property by a local ownership group, which invested more than three times the cost of a typical Fairfield into the construction of the 84-room hotel located just minutes off of I-77 at Exit 85. To date, no property in the entire Fairfield chain matches the amenities offered here.

Each room is comfortably appointed with a 42-inch LCD HDTV with complimentary premium channels, a Bose sound system, microwave, refrigerator-freezer, coffee/tea and more. Our suite had a second TV and a sectional couch in the seating area. In the morning, there's a complimentary hot buffet breakfast – a “real” hot breakfast; not a continental breakfast and a microwave – in the dining area just off the lobby. Guests can also take advantage of an exercise room, pool, spa and business center. And if you want fresh air, there's an expansive patio, with a fireplace and seating and garden areas, out back.

For more information or to book your own golf-and-wine getaway to North Carolina's premier AVA, go to www.YadkinValleyNC.com or www.YadinValleyGolf.com. You might be just as surprised as we were.

A True Taste of the Scottish Coast at the Jersey Shore

Twisted Dune is like no other course in Southern New Jersey. True to its name, Twisted Dune is a links-style course of twisting landscapes, dramatic elevations, and rolling fairways that offer a challenging yet supremely playable 18 holes carved on 200 acres in Egg Harbor Township. Deep ravines, towering grass covered sand hills and well over a 100 bunkers make Twisted Dune's 7200 yards among the most memorable in the region. The design features four par 5's over 500 yards, 10 par 4's and four par 3's. Though fescue and sand are generous, so are wide fairways, dentgrass landing areas and large greens. Twisted Dune offers a visually stunning golf experience that rewards accuracy and course management - making it enjoyable for golfers of every level.

It's the kind of course serious golfers love to play again and again - each time bringing a new experience.

Ron Jaworski Golf Raises $7,500 for Breastcancer.org thru The Girls' Golf Outings

A total of $7,500 has been raised to date, which is being donated to Breastcancer.org, along with additional funds raised during the Girls' Golf Outing at Running Deer.

300 golfers, men wearing dresses, bras as pin flags and pink mustaches are all part of events to raise funds during National Breast Cancer Awareness Month.

Four of the golf courses owned and operated by Ron Jaworski Golf (RJG) have teamed up to fight breast cancer during National Breast Cancer Awareness Month by hosting the second annual Girls' Golf Outing. Blue Heron Pines, Valleybrook and Downingtown each hosted a Girls' Golf Outing event during October, while Running Deer's was postponed to November 1st due to weather considerations.

A total of $7,500 has been raised to date, which is being donated to Breastcancer.org, along with additional funds raised during the Girls' Golf Outing at Running Deer. The event included a 9-hole scramble at each course, along with music, raffles, a Chinese auction, giveaways, awards, a banquet, and assorted fun and games. The event was also open to men with the provision that they had to wear a dress to participate. Pink bras were used in place of pin flags on each hole. Nearly 300 players participated in total.

"The Girls' Golf Outings are a fun and fitting way for us to heighten awareness of Breast Cancer Awareness Month, and to celebrate the participants who are breast cancer survivors," said Liz Jaworski, President of Ron Jaworski Golf. "Men wearing dresses, bras as flags, and pink mustaches are just a few fun things we do to bring light to a serious subject. We are very proud to be able to contribute to such a worthy cause in this way."

Breastcancer.org is a non-profit organization based in Ardmore, PA, dedicated to providing information and community support to those touched by this disease. For more information, visit www.breastcancer.org.

Peter Thompson (1962), Ben Hogan vs. Sam Snead (1965), and Sandra Haynie vs. Kathy Whitworth vs. Carol Mann (1969).

- The center of the Museum is Shell Hall, where members of the World Golf Hall of Fame are honored on an 88-foot-long Wall of Fame. Each member is featured with a bronze relief plaque in his or her likeness and a brief summary of each member's respective career gives a perspective on the greatest contributors the game has ever seen.

Of course, the World Golf Village would not be complete without golf. And the village boasts two exception golf courses.

The Slammer and the Squire is a tribute to Sam Snead and Gene Sarazen. It is a player-friendly design that was collaborated on by two of the game's legends.

The King and the Bear is a co-design by Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus. With a set of tees that stretches to 7,279 yards, it has enough teeth to challenge any golfer.

Of course, visitors will need someplace to stay if they plan to spend a few days at the World Golf Village. The Renaissance World Golf Village Resort is a 4-star hotel with 301 completely remodeled guest rooms and suites. Views of the World Golf Village's Kelly Lake and two golf courses serve to inspire hotel guests.

Finally, guests also need someplace to eat. There are a number of choices but no venue could be more fun for golfers than Murray Bros. Caddyshack Restaurant. Founded by actor/comedian Bill Murray and his family, the restaurant floods guests with the golf theme and casual dining.

The entire equation at World Golf Village adds up to the ultimate stop for the golf nut. Whether it is a pit stop, en route to another Florida location, or the final destination of a golf trip, it is worth the visit.

Cricketeer Brennan Crowned Champion of Champions

Philadelphia Cricket Club's John Brennan the first Cricketeer to win a Tournament of Champions title.

Senior Flight champion Joseph Russo's 5-under 65 was the low round of the day.

WALLINGFORD, Pa. – In a title-holding field of 42 amateur club champions, it was Philadelphia Cricket Club's John Brennan that played as the truest champion of them all. Brennan fired a 3-under round of 67 at The Springhaven Club (par 70, 6,374 yards) to become the first Cricketeer to win a Tournament of Champions title.

"I told my wife that I may never get a chance to play again in the [Tournament of Champions], so I had to get out here today," said Brennan, who is a high school social studies teacher by trade. "With so many great players at Philly Cricket, I'm not sure if I would have ever gotten another chance. It's a big deal to win a club championship at Cricket, so the fact that I won [the TOC] makes it mean that much more to me."

From the get go, Brennan was on a hunt for the hardware. His front nine of 3 under set the stage for his championship run, and hosted three birdies with zero bogey blemishes.

But once the Audubon, Pa. resident found himself sitting comfortably at five under thanks to an eagle on No. 12, trouble struck Brennan's game out of left field. He went on to bogey Nos. 14-16. Brennan's lead had vanished in the blink of an eye.

"Even though I felt like I didn't hit a bad shot all day, that was a bad stretch," said Brennan, 36. "Chet [Walsh] and Mike [Korcuba], my playing partners, were there for me. They started telling me, 'You got this.'"

Brennan, knowing he had to turn it around sooner rather than later heading to the 17th tee, bounced back in pure championship fashion.

"I told myself that my driver was feeling good. I hit it about 60 yards out from the green on 17, then hit a wedge to three feet of the pin, made the [birdie] putt," Brennan said. "That really got me going."

Another champion-like par save came on No. 18 (par 4, 370 yards) when Brennan escaped left tree trouble off the tee. He wavered on his approach club, but ultimately made the right call with a low punch shot that found its way safely to the front of the green. His two putt gave him a one-stroke victory over Green Valley Country Club's Ben Feld, along with the Amateur Flight title.

"This honestly just feels great, especially with the lifelong exemption and all," Brennan said. "Any time you have a chance to put your name on a GAP trophy, it's wonderful. It's a great way to end another great year."

Senior Flight

Joseph Russo of Laurel Creek Country Club took the Senior Flight with a strong statement, firing a day-low round of 5-under 65. He topped a field of 36 Seniors who played The Springhaven Club as a par-70, 5,905 yard track.

Russo finished his beginning nine at a respectable 1 under, but his game really caught fire after making the championship turn. Three birdies, coming on Nos. 11 (par 4, 402 yards), 13 (par 3, 182 yards), and 16 (par 3, 97 yards), fell thanks to Russo's flatstick feeling at home on greens that were rolling in excess of 12.

A jarred wedge for eagle, however, on No. 12 (par 5, 495 yards) ultimately cemented Russo's spot atop the Senior Flight.

It's been a year of ups and downs for Russo, who, back in August, three putted the final hole of a U.S. Senior Amateur Qualifier at White Manor Country Club to miss the qualifying playoff. Russo, a resident of Washington Township, N.J., said he had to take a few weeks off from playing after that disheartening finish.

"I was so disgusted. I put a lot of time in to get where I could qualify for that, and I thought I should have," said the 58 year old. "It was discouraging to say the least."

Being able to put that disappointment in the past got a little easier for Russo on Wednesday at Springhaven. He ended his 2015 season on the highest note possible. He is, after all, a champion of Champions.

"This feels good," Russo said of his Senior title. "Even if this wasn't the last tournament of the year, I still always look forward to playing in the GAP events. You always play on great golf courses against great players."

Ed Chylinski of Chester Valley Golf Club took home the Super-Senior title with a 8-over 78. It was the first year of the Tournament of Champions that players 65 and older competed in a Super-Senior Flight.

Open to current Member Club amateur champions, senior amateur champions, super-senior amateur champions and previous winners, the Tournament of Champions began in 1962 in memory of Larry Malmed. The Golf Association of Philadelphia accepted the event in 1984 after Al Porter, the tournament's coordinator, was forced to retire because of an illness. A Senior Division was added in 1992.

Golf Association of Philadelphia

Founded in 1897, the Golf Association of Philadelphia (GAP) is the oldest regional golf association in the United States and serves as the principal ruling body of amateur golf in its region. Its 151 Member Clubs and 57,000 individual members are spread across parts of Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware and Maryland. As Philadelphia's Most Trusted Source of Golf Information, the Golf Association of Philadelphia's mission is to promote, preserve and protect the game of golf.

SkyGolf® Introduces SkyCaddie® LinxVue™

Golf's Most Accurate GPS Watch Linked with Golf's Most Vivid Rangefinder App

RIDGELAND, Miss., November 10, 2015... SkyGolf®, maker of SkyCaddie® the most trusted Rangefinder in Golf, has introduced the SkyCaddie LinxVue™ multi-sport watch which wirelessly pairs with the SkyCaddie Mobile GPS app to deliver the convenience of a GPS watch, the vivid landscapes of the GPS app, and the accuracy of a SkyCaddie.

The SkyCaddie LinxVue watch gives quick distances on your wrist to 35,000 preloaded courses worldwide and expanded views on your phone that work together in perfect harmony. The SkyCaddie Mobile GPS app uses the powerful GPS engine of the watch to stay synchronized on the same course, same hole and precise location. When you need more information or a better view of what's ahead, the app delivers the entire hole in stunning HD graphics on your smart phone with the accuracy of a SkyCaddie.

"The SkyCaddie LinxVue is a watch-app hybrid that combines the best of both worlds," said Richard Edmonson, CEO, SkyGolf. "We've linked golf's most accurate GPS with golf's most vivid rangefinder GPS app to give you distances and views you can trust to play your best with golf's most reliable course library."

The watch and the app are perfectly synchronized to keep both on the same course, the same hole and the same location from tee to green. Both will automatically advance around the course as you do with Intelligent Automation. The powerful GPS engine in the watch replaces your smartphone's location services to provide distances you can trust... and conserves battery, too.

Using golf's only ground-corrected precision course maps, the SkyCaddie LinxVue provides dynamic distances to the front, center and back of the green. SkyCaddie LinxVue is preloaded with IntelliGreen technology which provides the actual green shape that rotates from your angle of approach and pin targeting allowing you to move the cursor location for precise distance to the hole.

Only SkyGolf walks every course with professional survey-grade equipment to create the most complete and most reliable course maps in the game. The SkyGolf TrueGround™ Target List is preloaded to quickly find precise yardages of up to 40 hazards, bunkers, carries, water, end of fairway and layups per hole. Powered by the LinxVue, use your smart phone with the SkyCaddie Mobile GPS app and have an eagle's eye view of the entire hole. With a simple TAP on the screen, measure to any point on the hole and get critical information you need to layup in front of, or carry, hazards. Or simply pinch and zoom HoleVue to seamlessly reveal up to 40 geo-referenced targets.

The watch is Bluetooth-enabled and when paired with the free SkyGolf 360™ Mobile App, golfers can upload scores and stats to SkyGolf's online community for fast and easy review of their rounds without a cable. The Bluetooth connectivity also makes it easy to keep the LinxVue up-to-date with the latest error-corrected course updates onDemand to avoid the obsolescence of preloads.

Designed to be fun and flexible, SkyGolf 360™ lets you track as many or as few stats as you want. All of your scorecard data on LinxVue is wirelessly uploaded to your My 360 personal performance locker within the SkyGolf 360™ Cloud. Once uploaded, you can review your performance from any mobile or desktop device without the need for a cable. Share scores, stats and chat with friends on the news feed. Gain insight with advanced scoring and stats with simple, easy-to-understand charts and graphs to help identify your game's strengths and weaknesses using post-round game analysis tools.

In addition to time and golf, fitness features included in the SkyCaddie LinxVue make this not only an every-day watch but also a fully functional multi-sport watch. A built-in odometer tracks location, distance, time, laps, speed, pace and calories burned during walks, runs or bike rides. All data can be uploaded and viewed using 3rd party apps. LinxVue also has a round timer to keep track of how long it takes you to play 18 holes.

The SkyCaddie LinxVue has a price of $249.95 and is currently available for use with an Apple iOS app. For more information, visit www.skygolf.com.
